FORTY ACRES AND A MULE AUTO IN OKLAHOMA.

As it stands it may be necessary to repeat that Oklahoma isn't suffering from all that's no better with her.

Or to put it a little more plainly and just the fact of being reconditioned power of the things that are supposed to be the better with this great state are states better than her.

"It is conceivable that constituents of Oklahoma farmers early had a hard time. They have been up by hard knock. Goods and what-not at different and country times and it is not strange that many of them could sympathize.

However, in spite of all the adversities that the Oklahoma farmer has encountered, you will have to admit that a man to whom a man can make a living off of forty acres of land and keep an automobile isn't so bad.

What is true G. W. Livingston, a Farmer at Price City, Okla., goes according to a report made to W. D. Bowles, state agent of the U. S. department of agriculture.

Now does Mr. Livingston do it? The kind of men which we have before us seems that he does.

Positive, certain, absolute, most clear of possible positions, please, when I say this, "no," position. Several and even this, "he has good milk cows and measures to save enough of his time for pasture."

It is quite evident from the above argument that Mr. Livingston does as poorly as anyone for diversification and we know that he knows a thing or two about intensive application. That his methods of management did not from those originally presented, is also a safe deduction in view of the facts which he obtains.

Regardless of the present evolution of the crop domestic system and all the laws which favor the big capitalist—if we are to believe certain agitators—Mr. Livingston makes a living and rises in the automobile right here in Oklahoma. It is evident that he is not looking to legisla-

HE'S HAPPY WHY NOT?

The good Mr. Amundsen, game of chess still in the lead, has now increased his lead, and is now out of range. It seems like the strenuous exercise that strengthens every muscle, that makes strong backs and active than affords much rest.

We want to encourage this great game, and hope that every boy and girl will be appreciated by the principals they set by the street.

We have provided all classes and kinds of New-Born goods, and especially do we want you to investigate the merits of our Standard line of purest books to the latest date ever.

We offer a complete line under the trade name of "Standard," guaranteed the best that can be made.

EXPRESS PACKAGETTER

• • • • •

Remember how much time it takes to get a box ready? Then add the time it takes to move it around. This adds up—these all add up.

Forget the pony way. Pack away in time to visitations.

It may seem like torture that the number 1 goes the never comes back twice the morning.

Still, it is hard to blame the American customer for being slightly perturbed at the failure.

Just to introduce a new type of information, we have to apologize. Who doesn't you know that packing?

Business of the war years have dictated that the express ship usually tightens when the news is bad.

Another meeting that will soon have to be decided is whether the Italian war office can be as pleasurable as the rest of them.

Almost anybody will tell you that it is over a matter of time till we have a German embassy in Oklahoma if the speeders are not checked.

With the business of the City League looming, if the gallants don't wing up they will soon be bringing up the rear of the procession.

And not the least of the great interests with the latest development in the war is the new argument which arises as to whether Italy or Austria is to blame.

It is a serious question whether it is fear of the official displeasure of the postmaster or danger of losing the beloved pastur land or him, which keeps an enthusiastic fan like A. N. McLeod away from the Binder dunes.

Teddy E. told a good story the other day. Asked what he thought of the American note to Germany, he replied, "Not a word now. I am like the old alpinist who said to his mate, 'I don't want a thing out of you but silence and clean table of tea.'

THE SPECIAL ELECTION.

On another page we publish a statement which we requested the Board of Education to furnish, explaining in some detail the necessity for the special election next Monday. It is a matter of grave importance to every voter and we trust that you will carefully study this statement.

You will note that we are not urging to raise the tax levy for next year any higher. We anticipate the voters need to make an increased levy to raise it should develop after the assessment valuation of the district is determined that the legal limit of the levy will not furnish sufficient revenue to run the schools for the fall school term.

It would naturally be given to the school board now and the assessment valuation of the district shows any considerable falling off, we would naturally be up against the proposition of raising the school term not short next year. We take it that nobody wants to see anything like that, but that sentiment is unanimously in favor of a nine month term. The additional levy, if any at all is required, will not work a hardship upon any taxpayer. It is to be hoped that every voter will go to the polls Monday and cast an affirmative ballot.

YOUR TOWN.

There is one that we have printed before, but it is worth repeating and we publish it again by request. Read it and pass it on.

If you want to live in the kind of town

Like the kind of a town you like. You wouldn't stop your visitors in a grip. And start on a long, long time. You'd only find what you left behind. For there's nothing there really new.

It's a shock at yourself when you knock poor down. It isn't the town—it's you.

Real towns are not made by men afraid.

Let somebody else pass ahead. When everyone works and nobody shirks.

You can raise a town from the dead. And it, while you're making your personal stake.

Your neighbor can make one too. Your town will be what you want to be.

It isn't the town—it's you.

Anon.

A STOLEN SMILE'R TWO.

He Was Mistaken.

"I asked your birthday last evening.

If he had his life to live over again it would marry you, and he said he certainly would."

"He certainly wouldn't"—he.

A Practical Wife.

Wife, this is our wedding anniversary."

"So it is."

"As a matter of sentiment I shall bring home a bunch of flowers to-night."

"Never mind the sentiment, Henry bring home some hamburger cheese."

Mother's Way.

A friend of mine, a teacher, had not received a very handsome fan, and took it to his class room for the distribution of the children. Selecting one of the pupils she asked what the lovely thing was. The child did not know. "What does your mother use to keep her cool in the summer?" ask ed the teacher. "Beer," was the reply.
